Transition to Adulthood

Planning, Information & Resources

Life Planning – The Journey To & Through Adulthood

There are many areas to consider in planning and building a new life – a good life - for a young adult after high school. The best transition planning is started early, is one that builds a team and support network around the individual and their family, and is Person-Centered, specific to the unique hopes, dreams, strengths, interests and support needs of the individual. Adulthood will hold many other transitions and changes over the years. Continuing to explore, try, evaluate, vision and build next steps and new experiences will be an ongoing journey. Build a vision and follow dreams - for that is what a good and meaningful life is all about.

Ministry of Family and Child Development (MCFD) - Into Adulthood - from MCFD web site -

http://www.mcf.gov.bc.ca/spec_needs/adulthood.htm

The purpose of transition planning for youth with special needs is to identify opportunities and experiences during their school years that will help them better prepare for life as an adult. Transition planning can assist youth with special needs in securing employment, pursuing post-secondary education and fully participating in community life.

A person-centered planning approach is a best practice. It places the individual with special needs or their family in a leadership role during transition planning and service delivery. The ultimate goal of person-centered planning is to create supports and opportunities that enable a person with special needs to experience a self-directed life.

The protocol outlines the components of a transition planning process that starts by age 14 and identifies the Roles and Tasks for Transition Planning Team Members. http://www.mcf.gov.bc.ca/spec_needs/pdf/roles_tasks_transition.pdf

Transition Planning Guides:

In 2005, the ministry produced two information guides to support the development of person-centred transition plans for youth with special needs:

- Your Future Now: A Transition Planning and Resource Guide for Youth with Special Needs and Their Families includes a workbook and resource guide to assist youth and their families with the development of an individualized transition plan. http://www.mcf.gov.bc.ca/spec_needs/pdf/your_future_now.pdf
- Transition Planning for Youth with Special Needs: A Community Support Guide provides additional information based on best practices to assist teachers, social workers and other community partners in supporting successful transition planning for youth with special needs.
 http://www.mcf.gov.bc.ca/spec_needs/pdf/support_guide.pdf
- These guides will be revised to reflect the Cross Ministry Transition Planning Protocol for Youth with Special Needs and its description of the transition planning process, the roles and tasks of transition planning team members and the government supports and services for youth between the ages of 14 to 25 that are described within.

Government Services:

The transition from services for children and youth to adult services ideally involves the youth, family, service providers, school professionals and ministry staff in the planning process. Key government organizations that assist in the transition to adult services include:

- Ministry of Social Development education and support payments, employment programs, bus passes and health and dental benefits for persons with disabilities. Community Living British Columbia (CLBC): from CLBC web site http://www.communitylivingbc.ca

CLBC funds supports and services to help adults with developmental disabilities and their families achieve their goals and live the life they want. CLBC funded supports are delivered through service agencies and help eligible adults meet their disability related needs and participate in meaningful ways in the community. CLBC funded supports can include:

- Helping to find housing options that encourage independence while meeting an individuals' unique needs
- Family support
- Connections with community services to support individuals, families or caregivers
- Community inclusion supports that focus on employment, social and life skills

This section provides information about the services and supports that CLBC funds, as well as major initiatives. To read CLBC's Information for Families Sheets, which provide explanation about key policies, programs and initiatives, please click here to visit Policies & Publications > Publications > Information for Families. To learn how the privacy of individuals supported by CLBC and their families is protected, please read the CLBC Privacy Guidelines which are available under Policies & Publications > Publications > Privacy Guidelines.

Youth In Transition - Services for children and youth with special needs were transferred to the Ministry of Children and Family Development in October 2009. Youth who have a developmental disability or meet the Personalized Supports Initiative (PSI) criteria are eligible for supports through CLBC.

CLBC works in collaboration with other organizations in supporting youth transitions. The Cross Ministry Transition Planning Protocol for Youth with Special Needs was developed by nine government organizations and is an agreement on how to work together to support the transition of youth with special needs to adulthood. While organizations that serve youth take the lead in initiating and supporting transition planning, CLBC has a role in connecting with youth and their families to provide information support and review documentation to confirm eligibility for about CLBC adult support and services.

CLBC would like to confirm eligibility for youth transitioning to adulthood as soon after their 16th birthday as possible and will review documentation for youth. Starting this process early is important. If youth are accessing Ministry of Children and Family Development supports and services their MCFD worker can provide assistance with transition planning and with getting the required assessment documentation.

Choice in Supports for Independent Living (CSIL) http://www.health.gov.bc.ca/hcc/csil.html

Choice in Supports for Independent Living (CSIL) is an alternative for eligible home support clients. CSIL was developed to give British Columbians with daily personal care needs more flexibility in managing their home support services.

CSIL is a "self-managed model of care". Clients receive funds directly for the purchase of home support services. They assume full responsibility for the management, co-ordination and financial accountability of their services, including recruiting, hiring, training, scheduling and supervising home support workers.

Who is Eligible for CSIL? Eligible clients: require daily personal assistance; have the ability to direct all aspects of their care or have a client support group to do so; and have demonstrated the ability to manage care services.

Getting Help Managing CSIL Services - Seniors and people with disabilities who are unable, or not always able, to direct their own care can obtain CSIL funding through the formation of a client support group.

What is a Client Support Group? A client support group consists of five people who have registered as a non-profit society for the purpose of managing support services on behalf of a CSIL client. Family members, friends, neighbors, an advocate, family physician or others may be members of the client support group. The client support group takes on all the responsibilities of an employer. CSIL funds go directly to the group to purchase home support services on behalf of their client.
